

PARISH LINK

The Newsletter of the Catholic Commission For Social Justice

Issue 8 ● July 2013

ENCYCLICAL LETTER Lumen Fidei

THE SUPREME PONTIFF FRANCIS

INTRODUCTION

Leela Ramdeen, Chair, CCSJ

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ, CCSJ welcomes with great joy Pope Francis' first encyclical entitled Lumen Fidei (The Light of Faith)

In this Newsletter we share with you the Official Summary of the encyclical.

Lumen Fidei was signed on 29 June, the feast of the apostles Peter and Paul, and released on 5 July. As Vatican Radio stated, it "completes the trilogy of papal teachings on the three theological virtues, begun by Pope Emeritus Benedict XVI who issued his encyclicals 'Deus Caritas Est' on Charity in 2005 and 'Spe Salvi' on Hope in 2007." His third encyclical was Caritas in Veritate (Charity in Truth) in 2009.

Since a large part of Lumen Fidei was written by Pope Emeritus Benedict, the photograph on the front cover of this Newsletter is most fitting. You will recall that after Pope Francis' Papacy began on 13 March 2013, he went to see Pope Emeritus Benedict at Castel Gandolfo on 23 March. After greeting each other, they went to a chapel there to pray. Fr. Federico Lombardi, the Holy See Press Office director, reported as follows:

"There, Benedict XVI invited Pope Francis to take the pew reserved to the Holy Father. But Pope Francis responded 'we are brothers' and insisted that the two kneel together in prayer at the same pew. The Holy Father also brought a gift for his predecessor, an icon of Our Lady of Humility, as a gift for Benedict XVI's great humility."

Pope Francis himself is a man of great humility.

Have you seen photos of him as he washed and kissed the feet of 10 young men and 2 young women – all inmates at a juvenile detention center in Rome – during the Mass of the Lord's Supper at the Casal del Marmo young offenders' institute in Rome? He said at the Mass that this ceremony is important because it shows that "the person who is most high among us must be at the service of the others". It also means that "we have to help one another."

God has blessed our Church by sending us successors of Peter each of whom guides us as Christ's Vicar on earth. If you want to learn about how to build a community of God's love, read this encyclical. It is divided into 4 Chapters with an Introduction and Conclusion. It is a most timely resource as we journey through the Year of Faith. As Francis Rocca, Catholic News Service, says, Lumen Fidei "is a celebration of Christian faith as the guiding light of a 'successful and fruitful life,' inspiring social action as well as devotion to God, and illuminating 'every aspect of human existence'... There is an entire section on the relevance of faith to earthly justice and peace." Faith also inspires respect for the natural environment.

May Christ dwell in our hearts through faith (Eph 3:17).

ENCYCLICAL LETTER

Lumen Fidei

OF THE
SUPREME PONTIFF FRANCIS

TO THE BISHOPS, PRIESTS AND DEACONS, CONSECRATED PERSONS AND THE LAY FAITHFUL ON FAITH

Official Summary of Lumen Fidei (The Light of Faith)

Lumen Fidei – The Light of Faith (LF) is the first Encyclical signed by Pope Francis. Divided into four chapters, plus an introduction and a conclusion, the Pontiff explains that the Letter supplements Benedict XVI's Encyclicals on charity and hope, and takes up the "fine work" carried out by the Pope Emeritus, who had already "almost completed" the Encyclical on faith. The Holy Father has now added "further contributions" to this existing "first draft".

THE INTRODUCTION (NOS. 1-7)

Illustrates the motivations at the basis of the document: firstly, it reiterates the characteristics of light typical of faith, able to illuminate all man's existence, to assist him in distinguishing good from evil, especially in this modern age in which belief is opposed to searching and faith is regarded as an illusion, a leap into the void that impedes man's freedom. Secondly, LF – precisely in this Year of Faith, 50 years following the Second Vatican Council, a "Council on faith" – seeks to reinvigorate the perception of the breadth of the horizons faith opens so that it might be confessed in unity and integrity. Indeed, faith is not a condition to be taken for granted, but rather a gift from God, to be nurtured and reinforced. "Who believes, sees", the Pope writes, since the light of faith comes from God and is able to illuminate all aspects of man's existence: it proceeds from the past, from the memory of Jesus' life, but also comes from the future as it opens up vast horizons.

CHAPTER ONE (NOS. 8-22)

We have believed in love (1 John 4: 16). Referring to the biblical figure of Abraham, in this chapter faith is explained as "listening" to the word of God, the "call" to come out from the isolated self in order to open oneself to a new life and the "promise" of the future, which makes possible the continuity of our path through time, linked so closely to hope. Faith also has a connotation of "paternity", because the God who calls us is not a stranger, but is God the Father, the wellspring of the goodness that is at the origin of and sustains everything. In the history of Israel, faith is opposed to idolatry, which man is broken down in the multiplicity of his desires and "his life story disintegrates into a myriad of unconnected instants", denying him the time to await the fulfilment of the promise. On the contrary, faith is trust in God's merciful love, which always welcomes and forgives, and which straightens "the crooked lines of our history"; it is the willingness to allow oneself to be transformed anew by "God's free gift, which calls for humility and the courage to trust and to entrust; it enables us to see the luminous path leading to the encounter of God and humanity, the history of salvation" (no. 14). And herein lies the "paradox" of faith: constantly turning to the Lord gives humanity stability, liberating us from idols.

LF then turns to the figure of Jesus, the mediator who opens to us to a truth greater than ourselves, the manifestation of God's love that is the foundation of faith: "in contemplating Jesus' death ... faith grows stronger", as in this He reveals His unshakeable love for mankind. His resurrection renders Christ a "trustworthy witness", "deserving of faith", through Whom God works truly throughout history, determining its final destiny. But there is a "decisive aspect" of faith in Jesus: "participation in His way of seeing". Faith, indeed, looks not only

cont'd on Pg 4

“one” without losing their individuality and in the service of others they come into their own. Thus, “faith is not a private matter, a completely individualistic notion or a personal opinion”, but rather “it comes from hearing, and is meant to find expression in words and to be proclaimed”.

CHAPTER TWO (NOS. 23-36)

Unless you believe, you will not understand (Is 7:9). The Pope shows the close link between faith and truth, the reliable truth of God, His faithful presence throughout history. “Faith without truth does not save”, writes the Pope; “It remains a beautiful story, the projection of our deep yearning for happiness”. And nowadays, given “the crisis of truth in our age”, it is more necessary than ever before to recall this link, as contemporary culture tends to accept only the truth of technology, what man manages to build and measure through science, truth that “works”, or rather the single truths valid only for the individual and not in the service of the common good. Today we regard with suspicion the “Truth itself, the truth which would comprehensively explain our life as individuals and in society”, as it is erroneously associated with the truths claimed by twentieth-century forms of totalitarianism. However, this leads to a “massive amnesia in our contemporary world” which – to the advantage of relativism and in fear of fanaticism – forto Jesus but also from Jesus’ point of view, with His eyes. The Pope uses an analogy to explain that, just as how in our daily lives we place our trust in “others who know better than we do” – the architect, the pharmacist, the lawyer – also for faith we need someone who is reliable and expert “where God is concerned” and Jesus is “the one who makes God known to us”. Therefore, we believe Jesus when we accept his Word, and we believe in Jesus when we welcome Him in our life and entrust ourselves to Him. Indeed, his incarnation ensures that faith does not separate us from reality, but rather helps us to grasp its deepest meaning. Thanks to faith, man saves himself, as he opens himself to a Love that precedes and transforms him from within. And this is the true action of the Holy Spirit: “The Christian can see with the eyes of Jesus and share in His mind, His filial disposition, because he or she shares in his love, which is the Spirit” (no.21). Without the presence of the Spirit it is impossible to confess the Lord. Therefore “the life of the believer becomes an ecclesial existence”, since faith is confessed within the body of the Church, as the “concrete communion of believers”. Christians are

“ The Christian can see with the eyes of Jesus and share in His mind, His filial disposition, because he or she shares in his love, which is the Spirit. ” gets this question of truth, of the origin of all – the question of God. LF then underlines the link between faith and love, understood not as “an ephemeral emotion”, but as God’s great love which transforms us within and grants us new eyes with which we may see reality. If, therefore, faith is linked to truth and love, then “love and truth are inseparable”, because only true love withstands the test of time and becomes the source of knowledge. And since the knowledge of faith is born of God’s faithful love, “truth and fidelity go together”. The truth that discloses faith is a truth centred on the encounter with Christ incarnate, Who, coming among us, has touched us and granted us His grace, transforming our hearts.

cont’d on Pg 5

At this point, the Pope begins a broad reflection on the “dialogue between faith and reason”, on the truth in today’s world, in which it is often reduced to a “subjective authenticity”, as common truth inspires fear, and is often identified with the intransigent demands of totalitarianism. Instead, if the truth is that of God’s love, then it is not imposed violently and does not crush the individual. Therefore, faith is not intransigent, and the believer is not arrogant. On the contrary, faith renders the believer humble and leads to co-existence with and respect for others. From this, it follows that faith lead to dialogue in all fields: in that of science, as it reawakens the critical sense and broadens the horizons of reason, inviting us to behold Creation with wonder; in the interreligious context, in which Christianity offers its own contribution; in dialogue with non-believers who ceaselessly search, who “strive to act as if God existed”, because “God is light and can be find also by those who seek him with a sincere heart”. “Anyone who sets off on the path of doing good to others is already drawing near to God”, the Pope emphasizes. Finally, LF speaks about theology and confirms that it is impossible without faith, since God is not a simple “object” but rather the Subject who makes Himself known. Theology is participation in the knowledge that God has of Himself; as a consequence theology must be placed at the service of Christian faith and the ecclesial Magisterium is not a limit to theological freedom, but rather one of its constitutive elements as it ensures contact with its original source, the Word of Christ.

CHAPTER THREE (NOS. 37- 49)

I delivered to you what I also received (1 Cor 15:3). This chapter focuses entirely on the importance of evangelization: he who has opened himself to God’s love cannot keep this gift for himself, writes the Pope. The light of Jesus shines on the face of Christians and spreads in this way, is transmitted by contact like a flame that ignites from another, and passes from generation to generation, through the uninterrupted chain of witnesses to the faith. This leads to a link between faith and memory as God’s love keeps all times united, making us Christ’s contemporaries. Furthermore, it is “impossible to believe on our own”, because faith is not “an individual decision”, but rather opens “I” to “we” and always occurs “within the community of the Church”. Therefore, “those who believe are never alone”, as he discovers that the spaces of the self enlarge and generate new relations that enrich life.

There is, however, “a special means” by which faith may be transmitted: the Sacraments, in which an “incarnate memory” is communicated. The Pope first mentions Baptism – both of children and adults, in the form of the catechumenate – which reminds us that faith is not the work of an isolated individual, an act that may be carried out alone, but instead must be received, in ecclesial communion. “No-one baptizes himself”, explains LF. Furthermore, since the baptized child cannot confess the faith himself but must instead be supported by parents and godparents, the “cooperation between Church and family” is important. Secondly, the Encyclical refers to the Eucharist, “precious nourishment for faith”, an “act of remembrance, a making present of the mystery”, which “leads from the visible world to the invisible”, teaching us to experience the depth of reality. The Pope

cont'd on Pg 6

then considers the confession of the faith, the Creed, in which the believer not only confesses faith but is involved in the truth that he confesses; prayer, Our Father, by which the Christian learns to see through Christ's eyes; the Decalogue, understood not as "a set of negative commands" but rather as "concrete directions" to enter into dialogue with God, "to be embraced by His mercy", the "path of gratitude" towards the fullness of communion with God. Finally, the Pope underlines the there is one faith because of the "oneness of the God who is known and confessed", because it is directed towards the one Lord, who grants us "a common gaze" and "is shared by the whole Church, which is one body and one Spirit". Therefore, given that there is one faith alone, it follows that it must be confessed in all its purity and integrity: "the unity of faith is the unity of the Church"; to subtract something from faith is to subtract something from the veracity of communion. Furthermore, since the unity of faith is that of a living organism, it is able to assimilate all it encounters, demonstrating itself to be universal, catholic, illuminating and able to lead all the cosmos and all history to its finest expression. This unity is guaranteed by the apostolic succession.

FOURTH CHAPTER (NOS. 50-60)

God prepares a city for them (Heb 11:16) This chapter explains the link between faith and the common good, which leads to the creation of a place in which men and women may live together with others. Faith, which is born of the love of God, strengthens the bonds of humanity and places itself at the service of justice, rights and peace. This is why it does not distance itself from the world and is not unrelated to the real commitments of contemporary man. On the contrary, without the love of God in which we can place our trust, the bonds between people would be based only on utility, interests and fear. Instead faith grasps the deepest foundation of human relationships, their definitive destiny in God, and places them at the service of the common good. Faith "is for all, it is a common good"; its purpose is not merely to build the hereafter but to help in edifying our societies in order that they may proceed together towards a future of hope.

“ The Encyclical then considers those areas illuminated by faith: first and foremost, the family based on marriage, understood as a stable union between man and woman. ”

The Encyclical then considers those areas illuminated by faith: first and foremost, the family based on marriage, understood as a stable union between man and woman. This is born of the recognition and acceptance of the goodness of sexual differentiation and, based on love in Christ, promises "a love for ever" and recognises love as the creator that leads to the begetting of children. Then, youth; here the Pope cites the World Youth Days, in which young people demonstrate "the joy of faith" and their commitment to live faith solidly and generously. "Young people want to live life to the fullest", writes the Pope. "Encountering Christ ... enlarges the horizons of existence, gives it a firm hope which will not disappoint. Faith is no refuge for the faint-hearted, but something which enhances our lives". And again, in all social relations, by making us children of God, indeed, faith gives new meaning to universal brotherhood, which is not merely equality, but rather the common experience of God's paternity, the comprehension of the unique dignity of each person. A further area is that of nature: faith helps us to respect it, to “find models of development which are based not simply on utility and profit, but consider creation as a gift”. It teaches us to find just forms of government, in which authority comes from God and which serve the common good; it offers us the possibility of forgiveness that leads us to overcome all conflict. “When faith is weakened, the foundations of humanity also risk being weakened”, writes the Pope, and if we remove faith in God from our cities, we will lose our mutual trust and be united only by fear. Therefore we must not be ashamed to publicly confess God, because faith illuminates social life. Another area illuminated by faith is that of suffering and death: Christians are aware that suffering cannot be eliminated, but it may be given meaning; it can be entrusted to the hands of God who never abandons us and therefore become “a moment of growth in faith”. To he who suffers, God does not give reasons to explain everything, but rather offers His presence that accompanies us, that opens up a threshold of light in the shadows. In this sense, faith is linked to hope. And here the Pope makes an appeal: “Let us refuse to be robbed of hope, or to allow our hope to be dimmed by facile answers and solutions which block our progress”.

cont'd on Pg 7

CONCLUSION (NOS. 58-60)

Blessed are you who believed (Luke 1,45) At the end of LF, the Pope invites us to look to Mary, “perfect icon” of faith who, as the Mother of Jesus, conceived “faith and joy”. The Pope elevates his prayer to Maria that she might assist man in his faith, to remind us those who believe are never alone and to teach us to see through Jesus’ eyes.

Pope Francis gave a 17-year-old boy with Down's Syndrome the ride of his life. He invited Alberto di Tullio, from Boiano, near Naples, Italy, up onto his open-top Pope-Mobile at the end of his general audience in St. Peter's Square at the Vatican, Wednesday June 19, 2013, while tens of thousands of people looked on.

CCSJ RESOURCES

CCSJ – “ASK WHY” TV PROGRAMME DVDs 2013

- 29 January Theme: Pope Benedict XXI's 2013 Peace Message: Blessed are the Peacemakers
Panellist: Msgr Robert Llanos
Moderators: Leela Ramdeen and Nadine Bushell
- 26 February Theme: Pope Benedict XVI's Lenten Message: Believing in Charity Calls Forth Charity
Panellists: Deacon Michael James and Nigel Cassimire
Moderator: Nadine Bushell
- 30 April Theme: No Time to Quit: Engaging Youth at Risk: Report by Prof. Selwyn Ryan & Team
Panellists: Ms. Patricia Mohammed and Dr. Marjorie Thorpe
Moderators: Leela Ramdeen and Nadine Bushell
- 28 May Theme: A Gender and Development Policy for Trinidad and Tobago
Panellists: Fr. Ian Taylor, Tonia Gooding, and Rebekah Ali-Gouveia
Moderators: Leela Ramdeen and Nadine Bushell
- 25 June Theme: Social Justice in Parishes: CCSJ's Parish Link Coordinators
Panellists: Deborah Ann Boos, Jo Ann Smith, and Dianne Wells
Moderators: Leela Ramdeen and Nadine Bushell
- 23 July Theme: Youths and Social Justice (World Youth Day)
Panellists: Stephanie Belle, Rodney Ryan Molligan
Moderators: Leela Ramdeen and Nadine Bushell

SOCIAL JUSTICE RESOURCES NOW AVAILABLE:

- Ask Why DVD Series 2012
- Take-a-Bite DVD Series
- Responses to 101 Questions on Catholic Social Teaching (Kenneth R Himes) $80.00 TT
- Compendium of the Social Doctrine of the Church (Pontifical Council for Justice and Peace) $140.00 TT

Published by the Catholic Commission For Social Justice (CCSJ)
Edited by Leela Ramdeen
Layout & Design by Hott Source
Printed by Andes Industries Ltd.

CONTACT US:

Lorna Chee Wah/Cheryl Wallace: 290-1635 Leela Ramdeen: 299-8945
E-mail: socialjustice@rcpos.org Website: <http://rcsocialjusticett.org>

WANT HELP TO SUPPORT OR START A SOCIAL JUSTICE PROJECT?

Call/E-mail today:

PARISH LINK COORDINATORS:

Northern/Tobago Vicariates: Mikkel Trestrail, 622 6680, Mtrestrail83@gmail.com
Suburban/Central Vicariates: Dianne Wells, 341 0095, dianneh.wells@gmail.com
Eastern Vicariate: Deborah Ann Boos, 365-6168, dboos0907@yahoo.com
Southern Vicariate: Jo Ann Smith, 762 8688, taylorsmithtt@gmail.com